Prophecies Decoded, the event we've been planning for so long, is about half over! The response has been very positive so God is blessing and we're expecting great results from the effort. You may report on activity at your site by emailing reports@propheciesdecoded.com.

All and everything that is available. (she was requesting the handouts and books) I am a cradle catholic; my twin girls are sophomores at two of this country's highly regarded Catholic universities. I watched all of the "Amazing Discoveries" seminars and can hardly contain my excitement for this upcoming presentation. No one in my family knows this yet, but I will be celebrating the Sabbath this coming Saturday at the small Seventh-day Adventist Church here in Sparta, Wisconsin. I intend to relate more of my CONVERSION to the Word of God to the Hope television webpage; suffice it to say, I am finally at peace and bear witness to the truth of the Holy Spirit to provide me the answers that can be verified in the Holy Scriptures. I thank God for all your broadcasts and the clarity of the information you offer to your viewing audience. I appreciate the delicacy with which you address the issues of the Roman Catholic Church, but... the Truth cannot be silenced. With great joy, I now stand with confidence in these final days. Bless you.

Ron Clouzet sends the following report:

The Prophecies Decoded meetings (NET 2011) began well, and we have early evidence that God is clearly at work.

1. At the Madison Campus Church in Nashville, the live site, there were at total of about 900 people attending both nights, between two sessions each night. At least 350 of them are non-member guests, and 88% of those who attended the first night returned the second night. This morning, after an hour of earnest prayer, the NET team, pastors and seminary students sorted out names for evangelistic visitation.
2. The broadcast to over 640 satellite sites went without any reported problems. People were in churches from Ontario to California, Florida to British Columbia, Bermuda, England, and other sites.
3. Several college churches are showing the NET meetings. At Andrews, the university church had over 300 attending, and at Southern, they expected only 25 but over 100 showed up, including 30 guests. In both sites, they kept adding chairs because people kept coming.
4. Last night, a well-educated and influential lady who'd come to the archaeology and creation meetings, cut short her attendance to a funeral and drove an hour and a half to attend the meeting. "I just could not miss this," she said with a broad smile.
5. We received a note from a guest who attended the archaeology meetings who couldn't wait for the NET prophecy meetings to begin. She had decided to start keeping the Sabbath.
6. Many have commented on the quality of the meetings and how interesting the topics are. A good number of church members, some multi-generation Adventists, have been surprised they could learn new things about the Bible.
7. Pray for those watching via Hope Channel/Direct TV, and that some may seek to connect with a nearby local church. Pray for church members to be revived as a result of these meetings.

Tomorrow night . . .

Beginning October 17, a health feature will be added to the Prophecies Decoded nightly meeting. The five minute health nuggets will be presented by leading health professionals who are experts in their fields.

The International Council for Corporate Health, directed by Juliet Santos, president of ICCH, launched www.MyHealthFixz.com in support of Prophecies Decoded. MyHealthFixz.com is a “one stop shop” that provides easy access to Adventist information on health, lifestyle, prevention, etc. The goal is to feature the Seventh-day Adventist Church in a positive light.

The website will provide the public information about the health lectures, about the longevity lifestyle of Adventists, Bible Studies, an Adventist healthcare system, schools, Seventh-day Adventist televisions broadcasts, Adventist Radio, Adventist Review subscription, Adventist Book Centers, and an opportunity to chat with people around the world through a “Forum” that will be monitored and controlled by ICCH.

Satellite sites should report on reports@propheciesdecoded.com. Audience questions should be sent to questions@propheciesdecoded.com

Requests for nightly handouts, sermon outlines, book and the Andrews Study Bible by internet viewers are many. Dr. Clouzet will provide access to the materials nearer the end of the meetings. Please stay tuned for the announcement. Hosts have access to all the materials online at <http://host.propheciesdecoded.com> at through NADEI.

Host churches may receive inquiries from viewers in their area, perhaps even quite a distance away, asking for resources. Churches can turn inquiries into opportunities for visits or at least a generally positive interaction.

Bible lessons, Andrews Study Bibles, and Decoding Prophecy, Ron’s book are available at NADEI Resource Center (269-471-8303, <http://www.nadei.org/transaction.php?category=95>). If they need sermon outlines, response cards, decision cards, prayer request cards, or schedules, visit the host Website.
